Army, Navy Orders Are Given Out

Contracts Are Being Placed at Rate of 40 Millions Each Day With Factories

Total Is Huge

Total Is More Than $1,661,891,494 in 40 Days

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Working at a $40,000,000-a-day clip, the National Defense Commission has placed army and navy orders totalling $1,661,891,494 in the last forty days.

The commission likewise reported far-flung progress in marshalling the nation's material resources, industrial facilities and manufacturing manpower for the mightiest peacetime defense undertaking in United States history.

President Roosevelt, releasing the first detailed reports of the commission's accomplishments to date, praised the record compiled and told his press conference yesterday that the progress was extremely good.

Mr. Roosevelt said he considered the reports of the seven commission members of greater importance than news from the Democratic national convention. Asked why, he encountered:

"Wouldn't you put the safety of the country ahead of anybody's convention?"

The reports, covering the six weeks the commission has been functioning, gave the following broad summary of the country's preparedness efforts:

Materials Are Acquired

Materials (Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., in charge)—Substantial supplies of strategic and critical raw materials are being acquired. Completion of plans expected in the next few weeks for manufacture of enough synthetic rubber to meet most emergency needs. Arrangements under way both for substantial production increase in high-test aircraft gasoline, and for its storage in strategic underground bases.

Production (William S. Knudsen)—$1,390,575,405 in navy contracts and $271,316,089 in army contracts placed, covering a long list of diversified equipment and material. Progress made toward a solution, at least temporary, of bottlenecks in the machine tool industry.

Labor supply (Sidney Hillman)—Needs of private industry for skilled and other labor are being met. Between 30,000 and 40,000 enrollees receiving training for defense industry jobs.

Price stabilization (Leon Henderson)—Numerous proposals for price regulation are being studied to prevent adverse effects on the nation's price structure.

Agriculture (Chester Davis)—Work is going forward on the problem of new defense factory locations, with the aim of utilizing surplus labor in rural areas.

Consumer protection (Miss Harriett Elliott)—Steps taken to protect public from unjustifiable increases in consumer goods prices.

Transportation (Ralph Budd)—Concrete recommendations have already been drawn up for acquisition of very substantial numbers of special rolling stocks for handling troops and their equipment.

Bookie Questioned

Erickson Is Asked About July 4th Stabbing of Howard, Tesoriero

New York, July 17 (AP)—Frank A. Erickson, a former bookmaker whose activities have frequently aroused the ire of Mayor La Guardia, was questioned several hours yesterday by detectives investigating a July Fourth stabbing.

Capt. Conrad Rothengast, who conducted the questioning, said Erickson and several men who were with him—whose names he declined to disclose—were quizzed regarding the stabbing of Al J. Tesoriero, alias Al Howard, and Patsy Tesoriero.

Conte and Tesoriero appeared at the West 47th street police station shortly after Erickson and his companions were released.

Foundry Fire Gives City Two Alarms

A two-alarm fire about 8:30 last night ruined a large portion of the former Lawton Foundry on Prince street, destroying a large number of moulds and equipment amounting to several thousand dollars. In the above photo may be seen the damage as it looked to passersby this morning. In the lower left, firemen are shown as they fought the blaze through windows from the roof of the building. In the lower right the fire may be seen taking its toll of the interior of the building.

Foundry Blaze Is Caused by Spark, Fire Chief Says

Damage to Prince Street Plant Is Estimated to Be About $5,000; Two Alarms Rung

Damage by a fire which broke out shortly before 8:30 o'clock last night in the rear structure of the Kingston Machine & Foundry Co., the former Lawton Company, at 82 Prince street was estimated today between $4,000 and $5,000.

A spark from the cupola in the foundry was believed to have caused the fire, Fire Chief Murphy said this morning.

The flames which apparently had gained considerable headway before the fire was discovered, gutted the rear section of the structure, destroying most of the roof and large portions of the wall structure.

A still alarm and two box alarms called out virtually all equipment and many men from the various volunteer units as well as all men on duty in the paid departments.

Firemen Are Hurt
Two firemen of the paid department, Harford Shultis and Harold Sanford narrowly escaped serious injury when they stepped into a section of a skylight while battling the flames on the roof.

Fireman Shultis suffered a cut on one leg for which he was given first aid treatment at the Central Fire station. Fireman Sanford received a slight skin abrasion.

Efforts of the large forces of firemen, most of whom reached the scene within a few minutes after the first general alarm, prevented serious spread of the fire to the front section of the building.

Central and Wiltwyck were called first by the telephone alarm and Chief Murphy en route to the fire, sent Fire Commissioner Joseph Disch to ring the alarm from the box at Pine Grove avenue and Broadway. A second box alarm was rung in when the chief saw the damaging progress made by the flames.

Equipment Used

Three hydrant, gravity lines and five engine streams were used in battling the flames which gave the firemen considerable difficulty because of their spread through the more inaccessible portions of the inner structure.

Damage was heaviest on the second floor and pattern room of the building and numerous moulds and various machine forms were damaged because of

Britain Puts F. D. R. As Top News of Day

London, July 17 (AP)—War news was subordinated to the Democratic national convention at Chicago and President Roosevelt's third term declaration in British newspaper today.

The Times devoted its first two front page columns to convention news and speculation and discussed Roosevelt in a column and a quarter long editorial entitled "Mr. Roosevelt's secret."

Typical newspaper headlines were "Democrats told to stick to it," "Roosevelt Decides," and "U. S. Democrats are Getting Cautious."

Expansionists in Drive for Positive Action Toward French and Dutch Empires

(By The Associated Press)
Tokyo, July 17—Prince Fumimaro Konoye, aristocratic exponent of a Fascist-like one-party system for Japan, plunged into political conferences today to form a new government as Japanese expansionists pressed for positive action toward the oriental empires of France and the Netherlands.

Even a governmental crisis was not permitted to halt Japan's strides toward creating a "new order" in Asia.

The foreign office announced Great Britain had agreed formally to close the Burma road lifeline of the Chinese government for three months and stop traffic in gasoline, trucks, railway equipment and "other materials" from Hongkong effective tomorrow.

Shipsments of actual arms had been banned since January 1, 1939. The Hongkong announcement and the Japanese pressure to obtain unconditional closing of the Burma route were considered all part of one Japanese campaign.

Youth Is Killed When Big Tractor Runs Off Trailer

William Fleckenstein, Jr., 18, of Wawarsing, Dies Instantly; Coroner Gives Verdict

William Fleckenstein, Jr., 18-year-old son of Town Superintendent of Highways William Fleckenstein of the town of Wawarsing, was instantly killed this morning shortly after 9 o'clock when a large tractor used to operate a bulldozer overturned while being placed on a trailer.

The accident happened just above the Brown summer home on the road leading from route 52 to Cragmoor.

Young Fleckenstein, a graduate of Ellenville High School in June, was working on the town roads this summer to earn money to attend college in the fall.

This morning with Thomas Smith, truck driver, he went to the Cragmoor road with the large trailer which is used to haul the bulldozer from one job to another. While engaged in running the tractor up a plank skid to the trailer he apparently lost control

Petaín's New French Regime at Vichy Operates in Manner of 'Goldfish Bowl'

Paris, July 17 (AP)—(via. Berlin)—(AP)—France's new government at Vichy is operating as a "goldfish bowl" regime—everything in plain sight of all onlookers.

From the new chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petaín, down to the lowliest undersecretary, the process of conducting the government has been brought into the open.

For example, Vice Premier Pierre Laval has made a habit of handing out communiques personally in the lobby of the Hotel Du Pare, where the principal government offices are located.

A corner of the hotel lounge has been reserved for Petaín. There he receives all visitors, both official and unofficial.

Other ministers of the Petaín government, particularly Foreign

Insists Upon War Plank For Non-Interventionists

Berlin Interprets Hull Statement as Against Blockade

If Secretary Means What He Says, He Therefore Must Decri Anglo Trade Stoppage

Berlin, July 17 (AP)—Authorized German sources declared today that if Secretary Hull means what he says about keeping world trade lanes open he must logically condemn the British blockade against Germany and Italy.

Secretary of State Hull declared yesterday, in comment on the proposed closing of the Burma road by Great Britain—a move that would favor Japan's Oriental campaign by cutting that Chinese life-line—that the United States "has a legitimate interest in the keeping open of arteries of commerce in every part of the world."

The British blockade, the Germans held, is in violation of the principle of freedom of the seas. "We don't dare to say, however, that he (Hull) will go so far (as to condemn the blockade)," these quarters said.

They noted, however, that American and British policies by no means always conform.

Preparations for the offensive against Britain are almost completed, these sources continued to say, but warned correspondents to refrain from speculation as to when or what the next move may be, declaring no one can forecast Adolf Hitler's actions and decisions.

Complete Confidence

Complete confidence in Nazi ability to crush England was reflected today in the calmness with which the German people awaited a decisive test of strength which they believe may come at any minute.

The authoritative commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland, which only yesterday reported everything was in readiness for a mass onslaught upon England, declared that the nation was awaiting Adolf Hitler's command to strike with a serenity which permitted it to look beyond the final struggle to the task of establishing a new order in Europe.

(Dispatches from Rome quoted German sources as saying Hitler might deliver an ultimatum to Britain within a few days in a speech before the Reichstag. Reports continued to circulate that Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano might go to Berlin Thursday or Friday to discuss with Hitler the terms of a "last chance" peace offer.

(British sources, however, dis-

Dies Will Begin Hollywood Probe

Expected to Get Information About Russian Links With Movie Capital

Beaumont, Tex., July 17 (AP)—Hollywood, home of movie stars and political idealists, came under the scrutiny today of Martin Dies, the nation's No. 1 Communist hunter and hater.

The Texas representative expected to draw from John J. Leach of Portland, Ore., it was understood, an outline of Soviet Russia's long-range activity within the screen capital. Leach described himself as a former Communist.

Leach yesterday gave Rep. Dies, acting as a sub-committee of his House committee to investigate un-American activities, a general picture of the Communist party's mode of operation on the west coast.

The sketch described a gigantic program to cripple national defense. Leach said it included propagandizing the army and navy, enlistment in the National Guard and establishment of control over shipping and communications facilities.

Young girls, Leach said, were utilized to lure sailors and soldiers to parties at the homes of Communist leaders, where earnest talk of Russian ideology and distribu-

Pro-Roosevelt Feeling Asks Only for Selection

Fierceness of Feeling Casts Aside All Third-Term Opposition; Farley Warns Convention Stampede Would Harm Democrats

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, outspoken advocate of full non-military assistance to Great Britain in her war with Germany, indicated today that the Democratic Platform Committee was in for a hot, last-minute fight over foreign policy.

As the group met to consider the platform draft completed by a subcommittee last night and sworn to include a war plank satisfactory to non-interventionists, Pepper arrived with the announcement:

"We have no intention of surrendering unless there is substantial compliance with what we want."

Earlier the Floridian, a member of the full resolutions group although he was left off the drafting subcommittee, had said only that the draft contained "two obvious deficiencies."

These, he declared, were failure to include an "aid short of war" provision, and a pledge not to yield to appeasement.

As the platform drafters, scheduled to submit their handwork to the convention at 1 p. m., Central Standard Time, gathered today they were besieged by a group of about half a dozen persons, headed by Rep. Elmer J. Ryan of Minnesota who demanded to be heard on including an anti-third term plank.

"Oh," said Senator Robert Wagner of New York, the resolutions chairman, "we are all through with our hearings."

The committee doors closed and the session began.

Ryan said that many supporters of the anti-third term proposal—he claimed strength from 24 states—were supporters of the presidential candidacies of James A. Farley, the Democratic national chairman, and Vice President Garner.

Meantime at Chicago Stadium, draft-Roosevelt sentiment blazed through this Democratic convention today with a fierceness which threatened to smother third-term opposition and leave unanswered only the question of how the President will be nominated.

As confidently as if President Roosevelt had said he would accept renomination, instead of that he had "no wish to be a candidate," Secretary of Commerce Hopkins and other third-termers gathered to map the floor strategy for making Mr. Roosevelt the 1940 party choice.

Such details as whether to have a formal nominating speech, or simply let the preponderant

Severs Relations Spain Ends Its Diplomacy With Chile After Year of Political Dispute

Santiago, Chile, July 17 (AP)—Spain has severed diplomatic relations with Chile after more than a year of dispute stemming from the Spanish civil war.

Relations between Chile's popular front government and the Spanish Nationalist government of General Francisco Franco had been strained over Chile's refusal to surrender 17 Spanish Republican refugees sheltered in the Chilean embassy in Madrid.

A high Chilean official, apprised of the Spanish action last night, said he could scarcely believe the "rude and absurd news" but added the government would "take suitable measures to meet such an unusual and incomprehensible attitude."

Haskell Revises Infantry Brigades, Improves Defense

Commands Are Changed. Two Brigades Altered by Ranking Official of New York State

Peekskill, N. Y., July 17 (AP)—A revision of commands in the New York National Guard, affecting three infantry brigades, and a shift in the composition of two brigades to effect a better geographical distribution of the guard were announced today by Maj. General William M. Haskell, commanding general.

Personnel changes were: Brig. Gen. Ralph K. Robertson, Buffalo, former commander of the 54th Infantry Brigade, was named commander of the 67th Infantry Brigade made up of the 71st Regiment, Manhattan, and the 174th Regiment, Buffalo.

Brig. Gen. Walter Delamater, Brooklyn, former commander of the 87th Infantry Brigade, became commander of the 93rd Infantry Brigade, to be composed in the future of the 10th Regiment of Albany, Catskill, Hudson, Oneonta and other cities, and the 14th Regiment of Brooklyn.

Brig. Gen. Alexander Anderson, Queens, former commander of the 93rd Infantry Brigade, became commander of the 54th Infantry Brigade to be composed of the 108th Regiment, Syracuse, and other upstate cities, and the 165th Regiment, Manhattan. A regimental change was announced in Albany by Adjutant General Ames T. Brown, transferring Col. William R. Jackson from the 14th Infantry, Brooklyn, to the 71st Infantry, Manhattan, replacing Col. James Gardner Conroy, who moves to the 14th.

General Haskell also appointed Col. Kenneth C. Townsend, Rochester, who has been retired, as commanding officer of the 209th Anti-Aircraft Regiment, of Rochester and Buffalo, with headquarters at Rochester.

Under the old setup, the 54th Brigade was composed of the 10th Regiment of Albany and the 14th Regiment of Brooklyn, and the 93rd Brigade formerly was the 14th Regiment, Brooklyn, and the 165th Regiment, Manhattan.

No change was announced in the 87th brigade, but the 93rd loses the 165th Manhattan to the 54th Brigade. The 10th Regiment, Albany, will be connected "temporarily" with the 14th Brooklyn Regiment to form the 93rd Brigade.

and the tractor ran over the side of the trailer and overturned when it went over a six foot bank. Fleckenstein was badly crushed about the head and was dead when Dr. James C. The body was taken in charge by Leland P. Pulling of Ellenville and funeral services will be held from St. Andrew's Church, Ellenville, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Besides his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. William Fleckenstein of 51 Warren street, Ellenville, he is survived by one sister, Marie, at home.

White House Gives Queries Lee Cold Reception Today

Newsmen Are Informed by Early That He Is Doing 'No Thinking' About Outcome

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The White House cold-shouldered question after question today as to whether President Roosevelt would accept renomination for a third term.

Eager for information as to whether the President would take the nomination despite last night's announcement in Chicago that he was not a candidate, newsmen peppered Stephen Early, Mr. Roosevelt's press secretary, with questions.

"As an official close to the President," Early was asked, "do you think he will bow to the will of the convention?"

"Just for the moment I'm not thinking," Early replied.

He disclosed that the President, with Miss Marguerite Lehand, his personal secretary, and Dr. Ross T. McIntire, his physician, had listened last night to the radio broadcast of the convention proceedings, including the announcement by Senator Barkley (D-Ky.) that Mr. Roosevelt had no desire to run again.

Asked whether the President was pleased with the reception the convention gave him, Early said a previous statement that there was "no news" was supposed to stop reporters on that.

Asked whether the President's "yes" or "no" to a nomination would be made public here rather than in Chicago, the press secretary said he would be on hand to relay it from the White House to the press if it was.

Berlin Interprets Hull Statement as Against Blockade

missed reports of a Rome-Berlin "peace offensive" as merely a resort to axis "war of nerves" strategy and emphasized Prime Minister Churchill's declaration Sunday Britain will fight on to the end.

Dienst Aus Deutschland saw further indications of Germany's confidence in her own strength in the failure of the press to pay any marked attention to the Japanese government reorganization or the question of whether President Roosevelt would be nominated for another term.

Sharply Reproved

Yugoslavia, meanwhile, was sharply reproved by both the German press and political circles for permitting what they described as a pro-French demonstration in Belgrade with apparent official approval.

They referred to a memorial service in the French cemetery conducted by the French minister to Yugoslavia, whom the Boerser Zeitung called a supporter of General Charles De Gaulle, leader of the "French National Committee" in London.

The presence at the ceremony of high Yugoslav officials drew caustic comment from Dienst Aus Deutschland, which said:

"The cause of peace in the Balkans and the interests of Yugoslavia in the reorganization of Europe are poorly served when high placed representatives of the army and public life act in a manner more French than the French."

Hitler's newspaper, the Volkischer Beobachter, spoke with equal sharpness concerning a similar demonstration in Lyon, France, and referred particularly to the prayer of a French priest that France might arise to new glory.

The paper said the spirit which brought about the fall of France "again frivolously raises its head" and declared that "we are giving a last warning."

Can't Evaluate Program

Syracuse, N. Y., July 17 (AP)—National American Legion Commander Raymond J. Kelly asserted today he could not evaluate President Roosevelt's national defense program because "I don't know what it is." Kelly, in Syracuse to address a luncheon, said in an interview (Herald-Journal): "It may be my fault, but nevertheless I have never been able to learn exactly what Mr. Roosevelt's defense and preparedness plans embody. I think the rank and file of Americans are in the same predicament. It's fine to appropriate a billion or five billion dollars, but I want to know how the money is going to be spent."

Louisville, Ky.—They hauled him into court on a bench warrant and asked him how come he hadn't reported to serve his week-end drunken driving sentence. "I went to the jail Saturday night but they wouldn't let me in," he said—"because I was drinking."

He promised to report sober next week-end, so the judge let him go.

the terrific heat and the great amount of water used in checking the fire.

It was estimated today that damage will be repaired sufficiently within a week to allow the men to return to work, complete replacement of that portion of the building and considerable more reconstruction will be necessary to the walls and flooring.

The second alarm in such fires, Chief Murphy indicated today, is mainly a precautionary movement to allow full protection in the city in the event of another fire while most of the paid firemen are out on duty. Volunteers from Cordts were stationed at Central Fire Station, those from Union at Cornell and men from Rapids were also kept in waiting at Central Station.

The volunteers from Excelsiors who answered the first box alarm under this system, were normally due to assist the paid firemen in fighting the fire.

The first telephone alarm was given at 8:30; the first box alarm at 8:32 and the second at 8:36.

Discovers Fire

Discovery of the fire was made by a resident of the neighborhood who saw flames shooting from the room. Because of the fact that the nature of the work in the foundry causes considerable smoke to pour from the structure at various times a fire in progress inside would be less likely to be seen.

Drellen S. Moore, manager of the foundry, told Chief Murphy that he had been in the building only an hour before the fire was discovered and saw no signs of a fire at that time.

The firm also operates a machine shop, but the machinery in another part of the structure was not damaged.

Thousands of people were attracted to the scene after the second alarm was sounded and Chief Murphy said this morning that he had heard an estimate as high as 8,000 people who stood along the railroad tracks and on streets of the neighborhood during the first hour of the fire.

The recall alarm was not sounded until about three hours after discovery of the fire.

Fighting of the fire was made particularly dangerous by the fact that the firemen were forced to work from the exterior of the building and on the roof.

Will Move to Paris

Sees Rise in Milk Production Costs

Wet Weather Has Created Poor Crop Conditions

New York, July 17—With milk production declining rapidly and crop conditions poor because of unseasonably wet and cold weather, Leon A. Chapin, secretary of the Dairywomen's League Cooperative Association, today saw "farmers' milk production costs rising" and possibly of "alarming supply conditions next fall and winter."

Extremely wet weather throughout the spring and thus far into the summer, said Mr. Chapin, has created crop conditions fully as dangerous as those of 1939 when drouth made the cost of producing milk unusually high.

There were excellent pastures early in the season," said Mr. Chapin. "Plentiful rain caused rapid growth of lush grass high in food value for dairy cattle. Milk production was high. Now, however, pasture grass is reedy and coarse. Cows don't eat it so well and production is declining rapidly.

"There is every indication of a short corn crop. It got off to a slow start because of excessive rain and low temperatures. Wetness of the soil has made cultivating almost impossible resulting in a heavy weed and grass growth which with the unfavorable weather has left the corn stunted and of poor development in many sections. "Much of the hay crop in the New York milk shed is of little value for cattle food. Rain interferes with cutting and storing the hay. It has little food value and many farmers have almost worn it out turning and re-turning it after repeated storms. Alfalfa is coarse and starchy and lacking in full nutritious value. The grain crop is poor too for the same reasons. Where there is too much rain it is short and thin, elsewhere with less rain it has not developed normally and the yield per acre will be scant. "Last year, drouth added to the cost of making milk, and this year excessive rain and cool weather is doing the same thing although full effect will not be felt until the late fall months. Farmers are again confronted with the likelihood of high production costs during the fall and winter."

There were 1,377,792 revenue-paying passengers carried on U. S. airlines in 1939.

'Draft Roosevelt' Clamor Gains in Chicago After Statement

Campaigners Predict He'll Get Nomination Before Evening Session

Leading Lieutenants Say President Would Take Bid; Delegates Shout Themselves Hoarse

Tumult Is Great

Early Emotions, Stayed by Silence, Break Into Hubub

By W. B. RAGSDALE

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—The clamor of "we want Roosevelt now" swept a third term draft movement forward today in a boisterous reply from Democratic delegates to President Roosevelt's message that he had "no wish to be a candidate."

So rapid was its prairie fire sweep that directors of the campaign to enlist Mr. Roosevelt for another term predicted the national convention would wrap up the nomination for him before tonight's session ends.

What the President would do then remained to be seen. But all the chief New Deal lieutenants on the scene predicted that he would accept.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins said he had "feeling and assurance" that "when the President is nominated he will accept."

For 25 minutes, the delegates had let loose a bedlam of shouting and marching last night when Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky mentioned the President's name during his speech accepting the permanent chairmanship of the convention.

And then, when he finally read the message from the White House for which the delegates had been fidgeting, they turned the big stadium into a 50-minute clamorous tumult.

"I and other close friends of the President have long known that he has no wish to be a candidate again," Barkley said.

"We know, too, that in no way whatsoever has he exerted any influence in the selection of delegates or upon the opinions of delegates to this convention."

"Tonight, at the specific request and authorization of the President, I am making this simple act clear to this convention."

"The President has never had and has not today any desire or purpose to continue in the office of president, to be a candidate for that office, or to be nominated by the convention for that office."

"He wishes in all earnestness and sincerity to make it clear that all of the delegates to this convention are free to vote for any candidate."

"Wants" Are Declared

All the pent-up emotions that had been held back through two days of routine and oratory burst forth as Barkley finished. The noise swelled into a raucous shaking tumult.

"We want Roosevelt," the delegates yelled.

"The United States wants Roosevelt."

"Florida wants Roosevelt."

"Georgia wants Roosevelt."

"Illinois wants Roosevelt."

"New Jersey wants Roosevelt."

And so they went until it began to look as if the convention's regular procedure might be swept aside and the nomination thrust upon Mr. Roosevelt at once.

"Michigan casts 38 votes for Roosevelt," came the cry, over and over.

But Barkley, who after delivering the long awaited message had been alternately kissing state standards, autographing the card-board placards and acting as a cheer leader through the big microphones, stepped in and spanked the convention back to order with his gavel.

Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, floor leader for the Roosevelt forces, announced that the resolutions committee had finished its squabbles over what the platform should contain and that the document could be adopted at the Wednesday afternoon session.

"Tomorrow night we can meet to finish the job for which you came here—of drafting President Roosevelt," he said, and the delegates began whooping again.

An adjournment motion was whipped through, and the delegates, hoarse and sore from their exuberance, went trooping out into the streets.

At a hotel downtown, Hopkins was talking with Mr. Roosevelt by telephone and refusing to say what he had learned. But he also was issuing a statement of confidence that Mr. Roosevelt would accept.

A little later, 14 of the men who have been at the forefront of the third term drive meeting in the Hopkins hotel suite to talk over the method by which the convention would yield up the nomination.

No Word of Decision

No word came of their decision. Nor was there any indication that the vice presidential race was settled. Secretary Wallace, Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson, and Supreme Court Justice Douglas were among the men prominently mentioned for the post.

All the thorny spots in the foreign policy section of the platform were said to have been planned away, thus eliminating the likelihood of any floor fight and giving assurance of easy adoption.

The foreign plank was described as satisfactory to those seeking a strong anti-war stand. Senator Wheeler of Montana, for example, called the undisclosed statement "a very good plank."

He recently had threatened to leave the Democratic party if it became a "war party."

Barkley's speech last night termed Wendell Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, a "political chameleon" because he left Democratic ranks two years ago, and said the Republican platform was "written in mud with the feet of a weasel."

"No political party or administration in the history of this or any other nation," he said, "ever made greater sacrifices to avoid involvement in war than have been made by the Democratic party and its present administration."

The morning session for today was dispensed with and the meeting was called for 1 p. m. (C.S.T.) with the wheels set for quick disposal of the platform. That out of the way, the road will be clear for getting through with the nomination.

Farley's Name to Go Up

Chairman Farley, who was given a vote of thanks and a rising ovation last night, for his long service at the head of the national committee, has said his own name would be put up by Senator Glass of Virginia.

Vice President Garner's managers said their plans to have the Texan put in nomination had been changed no whit by the declaration from Barkley.

"The whole Garner campaign has been predicated upon the assumption that Roosevelt would not be a candidate," said E. B. Germany, the Garner manager.

"The Garner campaign has never been an anti-Roosevelt movement."

Though no word came from the headquarters of Senator Wheeler of Montana, Senator Clark of Idaho said he intended to make the nominating speech for his colleague unless Wheeler ordered otherwise.

The Maryland delegation had plans for putting their Senator Tydings in nomination. Tydings was one of those against whom President Roosevelt campaigned in the 1938 primaries.

The Maryland senator held one of the state's standards in its normal position during the Roosevelt demonstration last night. But the usually calm and dignified Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, went leaping about the hall with the others, joining in the shouts of "we want Roosevelt."

The fairly general tenor of the statements that came from party leaders after the presidential message carried a demand that Mr. Roosevelt be drafted and a note of appeal that he accept. But there were a few who differed.

Senator Clark of Missouri, a Garner advocate, said, "it's a very poor president who can't draft himself if he wants to."

Rep. Elmer J. Ryan of Minnesota, a delegate, issued a statement saying the convention was being run "by a group of White House manipulators." He said the "Cohen-Cohen-Hopkins group has induced a tired president to accede to a third term draft."

Two Possible Second Place Names

Paul V. McNutt and Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, are two of the men most-often mentioned in Chicago for Vice Presidential nomination.

Foreign Policy Plank Kills Threat of Convention Fight

Praises Plank

Senator Wheeler's threat to quit Democratic party if it became "war party" is ended by new plank in platform.

Barkley's Report Released Feverish Nerves at Chicago

Seconds Before Kentucky Senator's Statement Like Those Attendant on Jury Verdict

By EDDY GILMORE

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—I know now the real meaning of suspense. Those few fleeting seconds before the jury reads the verdict...

Those breath-taking moments as a ball sails off the bat toward the bleachers in a world series game...

Those agonizing minutes outside operating rooms... The sickening seconds as the automobile skids...

And—exactly two minutes and 34 seconds in Chicago Stadium.

Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, his red face wet with perspiration, the back of his neck a different crimson, the blinding lights playing down upon him, the big man in the rumpled white suit. He had a secret to tell.

One hundred thirty million people—and probably half of the rest of the world—wanted to hear it. What would Franklin D. Roosevelt do about a third term?

Barkley finished his speech accepting the chairmanship of the convention... He held up his hands... 25,000 people before him, behind him and above him in the galleries, sat forward.

He began talking. High in the galleries a woman yelled. He held up his hands for silence and got it.

Secret Becomes History

Quietly and without emotion, Barkley made history out of the secret.

"The President has never had, and has not today, any desire or purpose to continue in the office of President, to be a candidate for that office, or to be nominated by the convention for that office."

A roar rolled through the stadium... Hundreds jumped to their feet... Men threw their arms around one another... An hysterical woman ran down an aisle...

Blasts from the band rose above the bedlam and then wasted away in the noise... Hardened politicians slumped back in their chairs...

A wave of hands grabbed for state standards... Movie Actor Melvyn Douglas, a California delegate who ordinarily gets paid plenty for so much as a spoken line, shouted at the top of his lungs...

Secretary Frances Perkins twisted her lips into a nervous smile... Chairman James A. Farley chewed gum frantically... The lower jaw of Speaker Bankhead was as stiff and jutting as a piece of marble...

Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles—a model of controlled emotions—pushed down a choked aisle with the Maryland standard. Senator Neely of West Virginia threw his arms about Barkley's broad shoulders... Barkley leaned over and kissed the Florida state standard that had been pushed in his face...

Hundreds of others behaved in a hundred other different ways. That's what suspense does to you.

Vice Presidency Is Wide Open Office; Garner Seems Out

Variety of Men Mentioned for Second Place; Hull Reluctant to Serve, Gore Declares

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Suggestions that President Roosevelt be given his choice of a running mate should he accept a draft nomination kept the Democratic vice presidential race wide open today.

Word from a high authority that the President had indicated that he had no objections to either Secretary of Agriculture Wallace or Louis Johnson, assistant secretary of war, was seized upon by backers of these two men as a campaign talking point.

Some delegates clung to the belief that Secretary of State Hull might be the convention choice, despite evidence that he was reluctant to serve.

Rep. Albert Gore of Tennessee, Hull's home state, said that on the basis of a conversation he had held with the cabinet member, Hull did not want his name presented.

There was renewed speculation on the possibility that Mr. Roosevelt might give support to Justice William O. Douglas of the supreme court for second place on the ticket.

Report Is Spread

The report about Johnson and Wallace spread after Johnson returned yesterday from Washington, where he had a 10-minute conference with the chief executive.

The report was not interpreted here as meaning that the President would insist on either, and supporters of other candidates pressed their campaigns.

One report was that Postmaster General Farley would support Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, for second place, but Farley himself declined comment.

Most delegates believed it unlikely that Vice President Garner would permit his name to go before the convention for a third term.

E. B. Germany, Garner's manager in the campaign for the presidential nomination, has expressed the opinion that the Texan would not accept second place.

Some leaders expressed the belief that the winning candidate would necessarily be one likely to win strong farm support because Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, who has been active in farm legislation, is the Republican nominee.

Backers of Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, contended he would win support in the middle and far west. He is from Indiana. Others likely to be contenders were Gov. E. D. Rivers of Georgia, Senator Alben W. Barkley or Senator A. B. Chandler of Kentucky, Speaker William Bankhead of the House, and Governor Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri.

Convention Program

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Today's program at the Democratic national convention:

Call to order at 1 p. m., Central Standard Time.

Prayer by Dr. A. M. McDonald, superintendent of Chicago Baptist Association.

Address by Homer Mat Adams, president of Young Democratic Clubs.

Report of platform committee adoption of platform.

Possible action on Presidential nomination.

Farley to Get Many Votes F.D.R.'s Word Means Complimentary Ballots for Postmaster General

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt's statement giving delegates to the Democratic national convention freedom to vote for whom they please made it increasingly apparent today that Postmaster General James A. Farley would get many complimentary votes from the New York state delegation, if his name goes before the convention.

Up until the presidential declaration it had been evident that there was a division of sentiment among the delegates, but today the feeling was that the situation would be ironed out to the satisfaction of all. Even strong Roosevelt supporters expressed relief at being free to give Farley a first ballot complimentary vote.

The delegation, meanwhile, turned to talk of the vice presidential nomination. There was some sentiment for Jesse Jones with unconfirmed reports that Farley was friendly toward him. But Farley, personally, was non-committal.

Rep. Caroline O'Day (D., N. Y.), commenting on the President's message, said: "I think it pretty well settled things."

Bert Stand expressed the thoughts of the Tammany members of the delegation when he said: "Sullivan (Rep. Christopher) is still for Roosevelt."

Although he declined to say whether he was alarmed by a reported isolationist trend in the convention, Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the delegation chairman, said he had expressed to the President his belief that the platform should declare for aid to Great Britain "and the other countries which have fought dictatorships."

"I told the President over the telephone that they should be given all the material help possible within the law," Lehman said. "We can't tell what's going to happen."

YESTERDAY: When the Colonel questions her, Kay keeps silent about seeing Sandra in the arms of Jeff. The Colonel stops the investigation when he learns that Jeff and Sandra have run off.

Chapter 20

Lunch Date

"JUST a minute sir," said Adam. "It's possible there's another explanation for this thing."

Colonel Pennant stopped, scowled. "What do you mean, another explanation?"

"The murder investigation," Adam reminded him gently.

The Colonel was shocked out of his anger.

"I don't know what you mean," he protested. But he did not expect of unbusiness crept over his face. He started to go on, glanced uncertainly from Julia to me and said, "That's all for you girls for the present."

They were deliberately silent until we had left the room.

"That's done it," said Julia, as soon as the door of her room had closed behind us, and burst into tears.

I let her cry, her sobs muffled in the pillow, until she had exhausted herself. Then, closing the door softly behind me, I tiptoed down the hall to the bathroom. I was coming back with a wet washcloth and a towel for Julia when one of the doors along the corridor opened and Mimi, freshly dressed for the day, came out.

"Oh, hello, Kay," she said. "I didn't know you were here. I've slept outrageously late this morning, but we were up until all hours last night. What's going on?"

"Colonel Pennant and Adam have been questioning us," I said, hoping she would let it go at that. I didn't want to tell about Sandra again—I wanted to get back to Julia.

Colonel Pennant's voice at the foot of the stairs provided a welcome distraction.

"Is that you, Mimi? Will you come down here, please?"

"Right away," she called back. "You'll stay and have dinner with us, won't you, Kay? It's dinner on Sundays, you know. And I'm afraid it's quite soon. Cora has the afternoon off."

I thought of Julia's tear-swollen face and of the uncomfortable curiosity of families. I made up my mind quickly.

"I've asked Julia to have dinner with me somewhere—we thought we'd like to go to Fieldstone Inn if I can borrow a car."

"Take mine," she said, as I had hoped she would. Fieldstone Inn is an ultrarespectable roadhouse on the Chicago road. I thought she looked surprised, but not suspicious. "Where is Julia?"

"In her room. Thanks for the car—you're sure you won't be wanting it this afternoon?"

"No. Stay as long as you like. Only be back before dark. These roads around here are not safe."

It was in my mind that she did a good bit of driving after dark herself, but of course I did not say so. I watched her start downstairs and thought that for all her careful grooming, she looked her age or a little more this morning. Which might be merely the result of lost sleep.

Julia was sitting on the side of the bed staring at the floor when I came in. I gave her the damp cloth and, while she scrubbed her face, told her about our lunch date.

Nostalgia

"SWELL," she said huskily. "Now I won't have to keep to my room and answer dumb questions. I wouldn't want them to know about this; they're so thick—why Mimi has promoted this marriage as if her life depended on it. Not she added with instinctive fairness, "that she could have brought it off without their cooperation. I'm not fool enough to blame her."

While she made herself presentable, and while we drove the ten miles to Fieldstone Inn I encouraged her to talk about them—about Jeff and Sandra, and about Mimi. I learned much that had been vague in my mind before—perhaps more than Julia knew she was telling me. More, certainly, than I had sense enough to recognize until later, when I began putting the pieces together.

There was only one thing she omitted, and I don't know yet whether she simply didn't think of it, or whether she kept silent from a sense of loyalty to her father and Mimi. For it was not until a long time later that I learned about Mimi—where Colonel Pennant met her and how he came to marry her. And that piece of information was to make clear much that puzzled me.

She talked now wistfully, with nostalgia, of the years just concluded at West Point. Colonel Pennant on duty at the post, Jeff a cadet, Mimi a bride; Julia at home week ends and vacations from boarding school.

I had been there one never-to-be-forgotten June. Week the year Charlie graduated; but I had not known Julia then. It was a strange feeling to remember that week—the hops, the parades, the baseball games, the horse shows. High-hearted days through which I had moved with Charlie, beside me. And to know now that near me, crossing my path again and again, part of that glittering pageant, had moved Julia, with Jeff by her side; to know that I had walked past the old brick quarters that faced up the Hudson, had probably read the neatly lettered sign, LT. COL. PENNANT, on the doorstep—the quarters where Mimi had come as a bride, where Jeff had lived every moment of his free time during his first three years at the academy, until after his first-class summer, when Sandra had come to the Peninsula for a visit and Julia had lost him to her.

Julia took me inside those quarters now, showed me a homesick, scared piebald dodging into them like a spent fox to cover; resting awhile, not saying much, gathering courage to go forth again.

"I'll never forget that first Christmas," she said. "I brought three girls home from school and we had a party every night. The piebalds aren't permitted to leave, you know, and they try to make up for all the fun they've been missing. Every time we turned around we ran into a mob of them. Those girls went to town, I'm telling you. Even Mimi had herself a time. She didn't look much older than the rest of us. I was fifteen, and they let me have some slinky clothes. There was one black satin evening dress that was a skirt and a prayer that I practically wept for when I saw it and Mimi said, 'Let her have it—there's a moment that comes once in a lifetime.'"

'Only Me'

"Where was Sandra then?"

"In Texas, with Jeff's mother and father. Mrs. Tack had the following summer, and Colonel Tack had a nervous breakdown and was nearly a year in the hospital, so Jeff had no home to go to the next Christmas, and spent his Furlough with three other cadets on a cattle boat that went to South America. I think his father turned against him. You know how nervous breakdowns are. Jeff never spoke of it, but I know he never went home, except for his mother's funeral; not even after Colonel Tack was retired and he and Sandra took an apartment in San Antonio."

"So he didn't see her either during that time?"

"Not until his first-class summer. Colonel Tack never got completely well—his heart gave out. Sandra stayed with him until he died, and then she did what she had always wanted to do—came to New York to study acting. And in a week's moment we invited her to West Point."

Jeff had never had any girl but Julia. Had never, apparently looked at anyone else. They were both growing up, and what had started as a natural companionship based on childhood association, was heading apparently toward one of those early marriages that often turn out so well. Julia, at least, never doubted that they would be married in the chapel on his graduation day.

"Why, everyone knew he was mine," she said, clenching her hands on the wall, and staring desperately at the road. "There were week ends when I couldn't get home—Mimi was set on my finishing school—but he never even took a blind drag. He'd spend the evening with Dad and Mimi, or maybe he'd take the city times, the hop or the movies. He liked Mimi—thought she was cute. For a while he used to call her 'Mom,' just to tease her, but she didn't take it very well, so he quit. You might not think so, but Jeff's very sensitive to people's feelings. He can't bear to hurt anyone. Only—only me."

She stilled the quivering of her lips and turned the car carefully between the stone pillars that guard the entrance to Fieldstone Inn.

"I don't want anything to eat, but I expect you do," she said when she had parked.

I ordered for her, nevertheless, and watched her make a small meal without, I was sure, knowing what she put in her mouth.

The place was not unduly crowded, and I had chosen an isolated table. I talked a bit while she ate, told her about Charlie and the girl he had fallen in love with, and that it didn't hurt any longer. I brought out all the familiar platitudes about fish in the sea and a hundred years from now. She listened and tried to take some comfort from it. But when I finished she silenced me completely.

"You can lose a hand," she said quietly, spreading her ringless fingers and looking at them as if she had never seen them before. "And after a while the stump will quit hurting. I suppose. But you can never find another hand that will take the place of that hand or be just as good. And besides, there's Jeff to think about. She'll make him unhappy. I know she will. She's such a devil."

It was said so disparagingly that my flesh crawled. But in my heart I agreed with her. After all she had told me, my instinct cried foul play. But how, and by whom, I could only surmise.

Creative Living

To visualize yourself as the person you wish to be and to strive with courage toward your goal.

To concentrate on building life—not just on making a living.

To dream great dreams and to put foundations under them with hard work.

To keep your mind filled with positive, constructive, harmonious thoughts.

To keep the heart aglow with love.

To open the doors of your life to the noblest and best impressions.

To cultivate broad mental and spiritual horizons.

To recognize that like attracts like and to give your best that you may receive the best.

To perpetuate your higher-self in the lives of others.

To make your influence count on the side of all things which work for the common good.

To keep in tune with the infinite and with life's highest ideals.

This, I think, is what it means to live creatively.

A widow visited a spiritualistic medium, who satisfactorily produced the deceased husband for a domestic chat:

Widow (questioning eagerly)—Dear John, are you happy now? Spiritualistic Voice (assuringly)—I am very happy.

Widow (greatly impressed)—Happier than you were on earth with me?

Spiritualistic Voice (asserting with emphasis)—Yes. I am far happier now than I was on earth with you.

Widow (rapturously)—Oh, do tell me, John, what is it like in heaven?

Spiritualistic Voice (snapping)—Heaven! I ain't in heaven.

Richard—Why, certainly, if the bride is a good cook and has a fat bank account.

Neighborhood gossip has it that Annabelle Hanks, the new bride, simply worships her husband because she places burnt offerings before him every day.

Live Today

The wise man acknowledges that it is most unwise to try to live more than one day at a time.

It is foolish to crowd into today the failures of yesterday, or burden it with the fears of tomorrow....One day at a time is challenge enough for any man.

Better have the excuse in writing.

Voice on Telephone—My father, sir.

The wife says there is nothing she welcomes more than criticism, so long as it is complimentary.

Howard—Do you think a man should tell all his thoughts and actions to his wife?

Johnny—That would be a waste of time. She already knows all his thoughts, and the neighbors keep her informed of his actions.

All In Making Autos

Last year the raw materials from nearly 2,500,000 acres of farm land went into the manufacture of motor vehicles or their accessories. These products included cotton, used in the manufacture of tires and brake linings; corn, used in the manufacture of alcohol for paints; molasses, utilized in the solvents and fluids, together with wool, mohair and leather for upholstery.

The Department of Agriculture has announced that the wheat and wheat flour export programs that have been in effect during the past few years will be continued for the coming year. The cotton export program will likewise be continued.

W. P. A. Statement on National Defense Plans

To correct an impression that has gone abroad that the Work Projects Administration may contribute 100 per cent of the cost of projects sponsored by communities as national defense projects, Lester W. Herzog, New York state W. P. A. administrator, today pointed out that this is not the fact.

Many such requests under this erroneous impression, especially for airports, have reached him, Mr. Herzog said.

Mr. Herzog pointed out that under the Work Relief Appropriation act an additional sum of $25,000,000 for non-labor costs over and above the regular non-labor allowance, was appropriated for projects certified by the secretaries of the War and Navy and military importance.

"This sum is obviously not adequate to make provision for the non-labor cost of all projects which may be considered as being important for military or naval purposes," Mr. Herzog said.

"Even though a project may be certified as being important for military or naval purposes, it must carry as much contribution as the community is able to make."

No More Titles
From Now On They'll Be Only Plain Citizens

Riga, Latvia, July 17 (AP)—Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania today abolished "Mr.", "Mrs." and Miss as titles and decreed that henceforth the term of address for all will be "citizen."

The decrees were another step in the Baltic states' rush toward a Soviet pattern of life.

No one is entitled to a title, anyway, said a Latvian announcement.

1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon paprika

1 teaspoon minced parsley

Wipe off the chops with a damp cloth. Sprinkle with the flour and brown quickly, on both sides in the fat, heated in a frying pan. Add the seasonings and cream. ## Rachel Field Has Praise for Film

'All This and Heaven, Too' Pleases Book's Author

At the Warner Bros. studios in Burbank, Rachel Field viewed the final cut of "All This and Heaven, Too," the forthcoming picture co-starring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, based upon Miss Field's best selling novel. For the first time the heads of a major studio had called in the author of an outstanding work of fiction to help edit the picture so that the flavor and integrity of the book might be preserved.

This move was necessitated by the fact that Warner Bros. were faced with the possibility of showing the picture in two parts owing to its length as filmed. Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production, and Hall B. Wallis, associate executive, recognized that the film could be so edited that it might affect the integrity of the story. Miss Field was called into several conferences on this question, and with her collaboration the film was

Woodstock

By MARGUERITE HURTER

Woodstock, July 17—There is a German prince in Woodstock, visiting a dowager down Zena way. We will get more facts and report on this further. We hope it is Prince Ferdinand, but that is only a guess. For tonight's entertainment we suggest the Maverick Theatre's old-fashioned movie night. Come and boo the villain at 8:45. Nickeldonian Night! You will have all the old curd atmosphere. The children love it. And so do we. But then, of course, we have often been accused of arrested development.

Thursday you must be sure to attend the opening of Bob Elwyn's new playhouse offering "See My Lawyer." Bob invited us up to a rehearsal, and we can only say, the whole thing is packs of fun, and a laugh a minute sort of play. Elizabeth Malloch, Ivan Triesault (our favorite) and a large cast of regular Elwyn members will be billed in this big production.

Bob Elwyn is such a busy chap we practically had to kidnap him to get that sketch finished. He is a modest fellow, too. We always tell him "For goodness sake, why not have your picture in the paper?" How are people going to know how charming you are? We wish Bob Elwyn might be seen on the stage often. He would be a great matinee idol. But usually you will find him in the back of the theatre.

The Maverick Theatre presentation this week will be "The Milky Way" opening Friday night. This play is a riot they tell me, and if the word of the actors counts, it will be the best yet.

The Woodstock Cheats and Swings are putting on a show Wednesday night at Woodstock Town Hall. That means a lot of rhythm.

Down the road Sunday we met Jerry Caplan, son of Florence O'Dell, who makes music at the "Brass Rail" Jerry is a big boy now and is teaching saxophone at a camp near Hartford, Conn.

We are invited to the Maverick to visit a candy factory. Fritz V. Der Loo is making up something like those famous Holland "Hops." (Is that spelled right?). We cannot speak Dutch, nor spell it neither. But we like candy. So we will go over to the Maverick. It is somewhere near the Arnold Blanche house. This candy is made by a secret process, and if we eat it, it will likewise be secret for we have promised to eschew sweets and reduce pounds and pounds. We just got another letter from Peggy McEvoy (wife of J. P.) and Peg asks whether we are making any headway on that fruit juice diet she gave us? No, we ain't! But the only reason we are not, is because we do not stick to fruit juice.

Mr. Fritz V. Der Loo is a fine fellow. He was born on a farm in Byrdcliffe, and is interested in the Maverick and Byrdcliffe, having been one of the original promoters of the artist colony, along with Hervey White, Bolton Brown, Carl Linden, and The Whiteheads.

Marian Whitely's son, Buddy, is working backstage at the Maverick Theatre as a technician. He tells us a lot of interesting things about the players, and also tells us to be sure not to miss this week's show "The Milky Way."

If you go to the Maverick on Saturday night you can get a free bus ride from the Village Green at Woodstock or from Carey's store.

E. J. Ballantine and Cecil Cloyvelly are directing that smart bunch of kids at the Maverick Theatre. We saw "Up Pops the Devil" and liked it. Sammy Hill (that's a girl) is the pick of the peaches.

Sammie is a little southern girl from Memphis, Tenn., and she says "Yes Mam" and "No Mam" in a way that makes you want to hand her a box of chocolate creams.

Sammie was outstanding in "Lucky Precious Stream" but explains naively that it means nothing to be a leading lady in a student group because they switch you about each week.

Last week, for instance, Charlie Purcell played the part of a janitor. This week, opening Friday in "Milky Way" he will be leading man.

We get a crush on William Crauford who is a tall, tired looking chap from Charleston. He played the part of the rich publisher in "Up Pops the Devil." This week he will be a reporter. We saw the show with Gaston Bell who was once leading man for Lillian Russell, and Gaston thinks that William Crauford is a "Natural."

edited so that it will be presented in two and a half hours. The author's statement regarding the completed version of "All This and Heaven, Too" follows:

"When 'All This and Heaven, Too' was bought for motion pictures I received dire warnings that once my books reached the screen I might not recognize the story or the characters I had written; so I was prepared for drastic changes in the transition from the printed page to the screen. But the adapting of this material has been a revelation to me of what the sympathetic handling of a book can be. I feel that in all essentials the screen version is not only the book as I wrote it but a projection of the characters themselves, heightened by the art of Miss Davis and Mr. Boyer and an extraordinarily fine supporting cast.

Famous Seal at Woodstock Fair

Sharky, Barrymore of Seal to Return for Fair

Woodstock, July 17.—The Woodstock fair, to be held Thursday, July 25, never had a brighter star to announce than that of this year. Sharky, Barrymore of seals, imitable star of the musical comedy hit of the season, "Higher and Higher," is coming back to the scene of his professional debut and will give three performances during the afternoon. Thus it will be possible for Woodstockers to measure what a year of city life and theatrical triumph has done for a simple country seal.

Last year, it will be recalled, just after his graduation from Huling Seal College, Sharky stepped out at the Library fair to give his first performance as a full-fledged professional. And it was at that performance that his star really began to rise. Woodstockers moved to many distinguished professionals and therefore skilled in evaluating talent, knew at once what New York was later to find out, that Sharky had indeed the soul of a true comedian. Round after round of applause greeted his every move, joined in, let it be said, by considerable damp flapping of Sharky's own flippers.

Sharky has presided at a roller skating carnival at Rockefeller Center and he journeyed to the World's Fair, where he swallowed a diamond ring worth $2,500 and thus immediately became worth more than any seal in America. And finally he topped his season by being given the animal award for the best performance in the stock home of a year of city life and theatrical triumph has done for a simple country seal.

Broadcasting over WKNY on Monday evening, July 22, at 8 o'clock, Gladys Hurlbut, author of "Higher and Higher," Sedgwick Field, star cornetist of the Williams School of Music, and Nancy Schoonmaker will do a bit of advance publicity for the library fair.

Sedgwick Field, with two of his associates, will also play a cornet trio from the library portico in the afternoon.

Mrs. Hulia Leaycraft, chairman of the women's clothing table, is asking for more dresses. She wishes it announced also that any garments received which are judged suitable for use by the war refugees in Europe will be withdrawn from sale and turned over to those in charge of making up such packages.

Mrs. Grant Arnold will be in charge of the refreshment section and will have a bevy of young ladies assisting her.

A new feature will be silhouettes done by Mrs. Frank London.

Learn To Play a Guitar The Easy Diagram Way

Make a Hit With Your Music

Tops with her friends—the girl who can play the guitar! Parties, dates get-togethers of all sorts are enlivened by her music.

And with diagrams and directions anyone can learn to play the harmonizing chords used in accompanying a song.

For instance, you use the F Major chord in the diagram shown here. At the top you see the notes and directly below, how to play them on the guitar fingerboard. The vertical lines are the strings, the horizontal lines, the frets—as they are on a real fingerboard.

With the fingers of your left hand you press the strings near the frets at the points where the fingering 1, 3 and 4 is indicated. At the same time your right hand plucks the strings near the sound hole, producing the chord. Pluck first with the thumb (X in the lower part of the diagram) and follow immediately with the other fingers—playing them together.

Our 32-page instruction book explains each part of the guitar fingerboard, gives right method of playing and correct fingering. Diagrams and directions show how to play chord accompaniments. Included are melodies of seven favorite songs with guitar chords.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of EASY LESSONS IN GUITAR PLAYING to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service Dept., 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GIRL MARRYING DIVORCED MAN WANTS REAL WEDDING AND APPEALS TO EMILY POST

May Wear White and Bridal Veil and Invite Whom She Likes—Church Ceremony Depends Upon Court's Findings

When a girl marries a widower she may of course make what-ever plans she chooses, since it is her first marriage and there is not ban against the remarriage of a widower either by state or church. But in the following letter a young woman describes a less simple problem. After saying that she wants to be married in white and in a church, she explains, "My fiancé feels that the fact that he has been married and divorced precludes any real preparation for the wedding. But I have never been married and always have wanted to be a real bride and invite all my relatives and friends."

To this I can at least answer that of course you may wear a bridal dress and veil, and invite as many relatives and friends as you want to. You may also have a collation or a breakfast, and a wedding cake. But whether you can be married by a clergyman and in a church, or whether you can even be married in your own state, depends upon the finding of the court in your fiancé's divorce. Since a man of honor—no matter how blameless—does not publicize the short-comings of his wife, he can seldom be pronounced so unquestionably innocent as to be permitted to be remarried in church.

An Invitation to Answer

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I have received an invitation to a silver wedding anniversary reception of people we know only through infrequent business dealings with the husband. We scarcely know the wife. My husband and I don't care to go; in fact, we have an engagement of long standing for that same evening. Can we be expected to make some acknowledgment of this invitation?

Answer: Beyond writing a note of regret, it is not necessary to do anything. On the other hand, it would be both courteous and proper to send a few flowers on the day of the reception, with your Mr. and Mrs. visiting card enclosed, on which you write your best wishes.

A Wife on Business Trips

Dear Mrs. Post: I take my wife with me on business trips occasionally. When I'm alone I register at hotels as John Smith and the name of the company I represent. But I can't very well write Mr. and Mrs. .... and the name of the XYZ Company, implying that we both work for the company. Or can I?

Answer: You should write your name as you always do with the business address, and then write "Mrs. John Smith" on the line below.

Four Girls Alone

Dear Mrs. Post: Mother is questioning the propriety of my driving with three other friends to spend a week in New York city and go to the World's Fair. We are all young women between the ages of 21 and 29.

Answer: From the standpoint of etiquette, it will be perfectly proper. In order to reassure your mother, however, you might stop at one of the hotels that are run exclusively for women.

Oppose Gasoline Tax

Granges in Pennsylvania are expressing strong opposition to the application of the state gasoline tax as applied to strictly agricultural enterprises. At the present time the tax hits farm tractors and trucks, many of which are used on the highways, and the Grange believes it is unfair that farmers should pay a gasoline tax for such limited uses.

Yesterday's Newspaper Boys Are Today's Leaders

Say the Leaders of Today of the Leaders of Tomorrow...

"I am firmly convinced that the boys who sell and deliver newspapers are receiving advantages over the other boys of the Nation."

"I have three boys of my own and encouraged each one of them to sell newspapers or to have a delivery route, not because they needed to do it from a financial standpoint, but because I wanted them to have that training."

"In addition to the experience which the boys receive from selling and delivering newspapers, the publishing companies today are rendering a distinct service by seeking to raise the intellectual and moral standards of those engaged in this work."

---Burton K. Wheeler,
UNITED STATES SENATOR

"From personal observations dating back to my newspaper days, I would say that, thanks to Newspaper Circulation Departments, the boy who begins his business training with a newspaper route has a much-better-than-average chance of really amounting to something in life."

"Many a successful man of this day and age owes his college education to the newspaper for which he worked. Furthermore, my years of experience as a law enforcement officer taught me that the best solution for our national 'Boy Problem' is: Keep boys busy; give them an interest in life that will leave them little time to think up and engage in mischief or unlawful activities."

---Herbert R. O'Connor,
GOVERNOR OF MARYLAND

WHILE IT IS TRUE that higher type boys are attracted to newspaper routes, there are no class distinctions in this business. Certainly a boy's qualifications are not determined by his family income group. Among newspaper boys are to be found sons of Lawyers, Doctors, Senators, Businessmen, Teachers, Plumbers, Laborers, etc.—all high characterized, ambitious boys representing a truly American cosmopolitan spirit.

Bridge City Club Holds One Victory Over Local Team

Brooks and Ruge Will Pitch; Manager Husta to Stand Pat; Game Time Is 9 P. M.

Semi-pro baseball returns to municipal stadium this evening when Freddie Dahn's Poughkeepsie All Stars and Carl Husta's Kingston Recreations get together for the finale of their home and home series. Game time will be 9 o'clock.

In the first meeting of these two clubs Poughkeepsie, behind the good pitching of veteran Carl "Dutch" Ruge, tripped the local forces by the score of 7 to 4, despite the fact that Kingston out-hit Poughkeepsie by 10 to 9. Ruge bested Bud Swarthout and Howie Brooks, the latter coming in with some nifty relief hurling.

Poughkeepsie Strong
This year Manager Freddie Dahn has an excellent club which has been pacing the other clubs in the Mid-Hudson Valley circuit. Last Sunday Poughkeepsie rolled up its sixth win by defeating Copake Falls, 4 to 2, with Ruge again on the slab and allowing but nine scattered hits. The All Stars took the first round of the loop in fine style.

Some of the best players in the Hudson Valley district are under the Poughkeepsie banner this year. Bill Ostrom, ace first sacker, Norm Stauderman, Stewart and Charlie Brennan make up a clever-working infield. "Lefty" Gohl, Dick Whitsell and Newkirk are ready for outfield duty. Whitsell, incidentally, is leading the club in hitting with an average of .420 which isn't bad for a first year man up from baseball competition.

Although the entire club is just about tops in hitting, Whitsell, Gohl, Ostrom and Brennan are the heavy hitters. Gohl, Ostrom and Brennan are well-known by the older Kingston fans while young Whitsell is just beginning to make a name for himself in baseball circles.

This will be the first game for Carl Husta's tossers since last Wednesday when they defeated the highly-touted Newburgh Recs at the stadium by the count of 5 to 2. That night Kingston used the extra-base clouts to bring the margin of victory over Charlie Terpening's boys. Coming out of a prolonged batting slump, Mac Tiano paced Kingston to the victory which was the first win in six starts.

Although Tiano belted everything in sight last Wednesday it is quite likely that he'll be on the bench tonight unless another outfielder is benched. Tiano and Bill Thomas are alternating in right-field which means that it will be Thomas' turn tonight. However, Vince Smedes or Tommy Maines may be taken out by game time.

The rest of the lineup will be intact. Jack Schatzel, George "Red" McLean, Andy Celuch (still the club's leading hitter), and Chappie Van Derzee are set for inner defense positions. Either Howie Brooks or Charlie Neff will hurl with George Zadany behind the plate.

Two-thirds of the Kingston pitching staff has been giving good results of late but Charlie Neff, just back from his brief sojourn with Glens Falls, appears to be off key. Last time Charlie hurled his control was very bad. Meanwhile, Bob Bush and Howie Brooks have been coming through nicely. Undoubtedly it will be young Brooks on the mound for Kingston tonight against the powerful Poughkeepsie contingent.

Following are the lineups:
Poughkeepsie—Gohl, lf; Stewart, 3b; Whitsell, lf; Ostrom, 1b; Brennan, ss; Stauderman, 2b; Newkirk, rf; Murphy, c; Ruge, p.
Kingston—Van Derzee, ss; McLean, 2b; Smedes, cf; Zadany, c; Maines, lf; Thomas, rf; Schatzel, 1b; Celuch, 3b; Brooks, p.

Sarazen Must Eat Boast He Made About Golf Team

Walter Hagen's Linksmen Win 3-1 for Red Cross; Need Only Six Out of Eight Now

Detroit, July 17 (AP)—Fiery Gene Sarazen, on the spot with his team of challengers, faced the uncomfortable prospect today of having to swallow a boast that his own chosen stars could whip the Ryder Cup team.

It will take some miracle of golf for the Connecticut gentleman-farmer to avert such a fate. His handpicked squad trailed Walter Hagen's crew, 3 to 1, after yesterday's rounds.

All the challengers had to do to save face in this battle for charity and supremacy was to get hot today and win six of the eight singles matches.

To strengthen his team Sarazen inserted himself and Lawson Little, new national open champion, into the line-up, replacing Tommy Armour of Chicago and Jimmy Thomson of Chicago, Mass., victims of an 8 and 7 trimming yesterday at the hands of Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.

Little, unable to play in the opening matches, had his work cut out for him, however. He faced Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., who teamed with Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., to whip Craig Hood of New York and Billy Burke of Cleveland 2 up.

Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Dick Metz of Chicago got the jump at the start yesterday on young Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y., and Lighthouse Harry Cooper, Chicago veteran, and won, 5 and 4. Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan, fellow Texans, carded a 1-up victory over Ralph Guldahl, ex-open king, and Slammin' Sammy Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Some balm was provided the challengers in the triumph of Demaret and Hogan. The Texans, after shooting a 74, two over par, in the morning, burned up the course in the afternoon with a 69, the day's best subpar round.

Hagen, elated over his team's showing, gave his alternates, Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Jimmy Hines, of New York, a chance to play by removing McSpaden and Runyan.

Pairings for today's 36-hole test: Sneed vs. Hogan; Metz vs. Demaret; Picard vs. Sarazen; Guldahl vs. Wood; Smith vs. Little; Nelson vs. Burke; Hines vs. Oliver; Ghezzi vs. Cooper.

Proceeds of the two-day match go to the Red Cross war relief fund.

Today's Guest Star

Nixon Denton, Cincinnati Times-Star: "Mr. Godoy has had his tonsils cut out. If he had asked Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion probably would have knocked them out for him."

Finds His Ball

Easton, Pa., July 17 (AP)—A search for the golf ball he lost in practice left Russel Armstrong, 22-year-old Lafayette College student stranded 10 yards from the top of the 200-foot high walls of a stone quarry. Nearly 500 persons watched last night as firemen worked in the glare of powerful searchlights for two hours to rescue the climber. Armstrong said he didn't have any trouble till he hit the last 10 yards, then couldn't move either way. P. S.—He found the ball.

Two Youths Face Serious Charge

Minor Count Arrest Here May Bring Sterner Justice in New York Court

Two youths who gave the local police New York city addresses following their arrest here yesterday on minor charges will face prosecution on a more serious charge when they are returned to New York today.

The two are: Walter Mazura, 18, of 332 East 172nd street, New York, and Jack Heidman, 19, of 1320 Bathgate avenue, Bronx. Mazura was detained in jail here last night on a vagrancy charge and his friend for driving a car without a license.

At first following their arrest, the two said they had taken the car in which they had been riding from near the Smith avenue Bull Market, but following further questioning by the police they were said to have admitted taking the car from New York.

Patrolmen Camp and Schoonmaker stopped the two in the car in the uptown section of the city, subsequent to finding that Heidman had no license, the officers learned that the car was registered in the name of a New York clergyman and had been stolen yesterday.

A message was sent to the New York police and local headquarters later was notified that detectives would arrive today to bring the two back to New York on charges of grand larceny, second degree.

Willkie Insists He Would Rather Face F.D.R. in Campaign

Chief Executive would be the nominee.

"This is the answer," Willkie said, indicating the radio. "Now I can take it easy." And he leaned back comfortably on the couch. The nominee smiled when a convention delegate shouted in the microphone, "We want Roosevelt!"

"They are stealing my slogan," Willkie said, referring to the campaign cry, "We want Willkie!"

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 17 (AP)—The stock market went through the motions of a rally today but didn't get far.

Early attempts to resume the previous session's advance met indifference. As traders hastened to sell out shares bought for a rally, prices dipped.

Small gains and losses were about equally distributed through the list near the final hour. Transactions slowed on the setback, making turnover at the rate of about 400,000 shares for a full session.

Among the losers were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Anaconda, General Motors, Chrysler, American Can, du Pont, New York Central, Southern Railway, Loft and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Resistant were Kennecott, American Telephone, Union Carbide, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Edison.

Rail bonds carried on the recent upswing in that division. Commodities were mixed.

In the curb minor gains were chalked up for Bath Iron Works, Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore and New Jersey Zinc.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 15 Broad street, New York city, branch office, 48 Main street, R. B. Osterhoudt, manager.

Stocks Made Good Showing Tuesday

Industrials, Utilities and Rails Made Advances

The stock market made the best showing Tuesday price-wise that it has in some time, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closing at 123.12, a gain of 1.40 points for the day. The rails average was up .23 point, to 26.33 and utilities advanced .12 to close at 22.64. Volume was small, but the total of 437,840 shares was nearly twice that of Monday's 22-year low and largest since June 28.

Comment is made that heaviest trading during the day took place while prices were advancing and it is noted as of further significance that the market appeared to fluctuate with news from the Chicago convention, rallying on stories that there was growing opposition to the third term movement and reacting later on news that the New Deal forces were reforming their lines.

U. S. Steel was the most active stock and gained a point in turnover of 12,300 shares. Others on the active list making good gains were Bethlehem Steel, up 2 1/2, Chrysler, up 2 1/2 and United Aircraft up 1/2. Steel and aviation issues were particularly strong.

In the commodity markets wheat made the best showing in two weeks, closing near the best levels of the day with gains of 1 1/2 to two cents a bushel. With further liquidation July cotton closed off 14 points, but the new months were up five to six points on unfavorable crop news.

In quoting a paragraph in this column Tuesday on the effect the radical policies of the administration have had in throttling business and finance generally and the seriousness of the present situation with reference to need for financing defense appropriations of $13,000,000,000, credits were given to C. Norman Stabler of The Times. This was a slip, as Mr. Stabler is financial editor of the Herald Tribune.

Reports of a number of leading makers of automobiles show good business for the first ten days of July. Cadillac-LaSalle showed a reversal of the usual seasonal downturn with sales 30 per cent above the June period and best with one exception in the company's history for the period. Pontiac had sales of 6,643 cars, the first ten days of the month, an increase of 98 per cent over last year this time. Chevrolet sold 27,869 cars and trucks as against 18,509 in the first ten days of July last year.

Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. shows good gain in net for the second quarter compared with 1939 and also for the 12 months to June 30. For the quarter net is $429,468, net in the 1939 quarter of $382,141. For the 12 months net is $1,718,855 against net of $1,590,617 in the previous 12 months. Figures subject to audit and year-end adjustment.

About the Folks

Kenneth Stratton of 59 West O'Reilly street is a patient in the Post Graduate Hospital, New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Longyear and daughter, former residents of Kingston, now living in Geneva, called on friends here Tuesday on their way home from a trip to New York city and the World's Fair. Since leaving Kingston Mr. Longyear has been connected with the oil business in Geneva.

group, which thereupon voted to adjourn.

The proposal was put forward by Judge Peirson W. Hall of California. In a delegate contest over the six votes from Puerto Rico, to which the committee had been listening, there had been charges and counter-charges that island Democrats had been assessed $1 to $2 to sit in the conventions which chose the rival delegates.

Another promptly argued that such a policy matter was outside the province of the credentials committee today by one member.

B. P. W. Increases Equipment With Several New Units

Equipment of the local Board of Public Works has been increased by several new units, it was reported at a meeting of the board yesterday afternoon.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman announced that a new steam roller and a power shovel have arrived and that the board also has ordered new scarifiers, a street sweeper, trucks and other items, some of which also have been delivered.

The order was placed under a special equipment appropriation authorized by the Common Council earlier this month. These units will be used both by the public works department and the W.P.A.

Permission was granted by the board to the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Company to construct gas governor stations on Meadow and Prince streets, St. James Court, Flatbush avenue and Cornell street locations. These will be designated by Street Superintendent Ernest A. Steuding.

City Engineer James G. Norton reporting on work done by the WPA during the past month, said that 1,115 feet of water pipe had been laid on John street, Clinton and Washington avenues. He reported also that 1,000 feet of sanitary and stormwater sewer line was built during June.

The city engineer told the board also that the Twaalfskill brook project is now 97 per cent complete.

Youth's Hearing Is Put Aside

Authorities Will Query Girl in Hospital

Harrison, N. Y., July 17 (AP)—Hearing on second degree criminal assault charges lodged against William Alexander Stuart, 16, were adjourned until Friday by Justice of the Peace Charles C. Venezia here today.

The adjournment was granted to give authorities an opportunity to question 17-year-old Domenica Carmella Capola, who is unconscious in St. Agnes Hospital, White Plains, with a possible fractured skull she suffered in leaping from Stuart's chauffeur-driven car Monday night.

Judge Venezia permitted William, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Laura Belle Stuart, and brother, Robert, 19, on the Westchester Country Club grounds, to continue free under $5,000 bail. The youth, well-dressed and poised, was in court while a battery of attorneys consulted on procedures in the case.

The girl, whom William claims "accepted his advances," is reported "slightly improved," at the hospital today and is given a good chance to recover. She is the daughter of an unemployed Harrison stone mason. William says she jumped from the moving car after she asked that he marry her and he refused.

lined with clerk service as well. In line with the A. & P. policy at all of its self-service departments the reduction in expense through self-service will be passed along to the consumer in an attempt to keep prices at the lowest possible level consistent with quality. All merchandise is assembled in related groups on shelves among which the customer passes. Convenient basket carriages make shopping convenient and easy. All items are priced and numerous convenient checkers total the purchase and act as cashiers. Space aisles in the new store will accommodate a great number of customers without congestion.

The market is located on a portion of the former bus terminal, and that portion not occupied by the store will be available for parking facilities for customers. Ample parking space at the rear of the store will make purchasing most convenient.

Was Begun in 1859

Opening of the new A. & P. super-market on North Front street is but another step in the Atlantic and Pacific food chain which grows out of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, which was started in 1859 by George Huntington Hartford, pioneer chain store man, in New York city. Designed to bring about a decrease in price of tea, which was then selling at $1 per pound, Hartford opened the store to shorten the line of distribution from producer to consumer and to sell tea in a volume which would permit a decided reduction in price.

In 1871 Hartford began his national expansion program by sending supplies to Chicago, following the big fire, and branch stores gradually were opened throughout the country with their conspicuous red fronts. Wagons were run through the country selling merchandise and in 1912 A. & P. opened its revolutionary cash and carry policy. With John A. Hartford, present president, at its head, and his brother, George Hartford, they took over the business in 1917 at the death of their father, and have since instituted the self-service policy throughout the country. New stores were opened at the rate of eight a day for the next three years and today there are about 85,000 A. & P. employees. There are 11,750 stores selling nearly a billion dollars' worth of groceries a year.

Plans for the store were drawn by Architect Albert E. Milliken, of this city.

Consider Guidance Service for Out-of-School Youth

Guidance service for out-of-school youth will be considered from many different angles at the fifth annual conference on Educational and Vocational Guidance to be held at Syracuse University Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 18, 19 and 20.

The Thursday afternoon session will be devoted to a meeting of the New York State Counselors Association and the evening to an informal reception at which W. S. Givens, secretary of National Education Association, and Floyd E. Reeves, director of American Youth Commission, Washington, D. C., will be speakers. Dr. H. S. Ganders, dean of the Syracuse School of Education, will preside. Friday will be devoted to a general session and group sessions. At the general session the speakers will be William J. Small, president of the New York State Teachers' Association, and Edward Landy, director of an occupational adjustment study for the National Association of Secondary Principals.

A dinner session will be held on Friday evening at the Drumlins Country Club with Ernest Reed, director of the Syracuse University summer session, acting as toastmaster. Dr. L. A. Wilson, associate commissioner, New York State Education Department, will speak on "Education and Work," and Whiting Williams on "Main-springs of Men."

On Saturday morning the program of the young serving agencies will be repeated for those who have been unable to attend Friday's session. The conference will be concluded with a luncheon session at Drumlins Country Club, at which Eunice Hilton, dean of women at Syracuse University, will act as toastmistress, introducing Edward G. Williamson, of the University of Minnesota, who will address the group on "Vocational Guidance in Wider Perspective."

missing documents were found, and Laval, clutching them firmly, hurried out to have them signed by Albert Lebrun, still nominally president.

Ten minutes later Laval returned, still carrying the papers. He stalked across the lounge to Petain's corner. With a flourish he produced a fountain pen and, while about 100 persons watched, the marshal countersigned the assembly's orders.

Everyone knew then the old constitution had been abrogated. Several hours later Laval was heard in another discussion, even more animated. Onlookers learned Lebrun had declined temporarily to sign his resignation in favor of Petain.

Laval called a session of his aides, several cabinet ministers and French newspapermen. They talked quietly nearly half an hour. Then Laval arose. To a query from a nearby table, he replied with a smile: "Nothing new for the moment. Wait until tomorrow. Good night."

This was the signal everyone had been awaiting, since Laval always announces when he is going to bed, and then everyone else goes home too.

The next morning it was learned

Prince Konoye Is To Form Cabinet

uary 4, 1939, during the period of Japan's greatest military activity in China, was commissioned by Emperor Hirohito tonight to head a new cabinet.

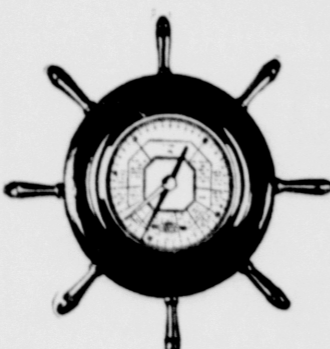

The prince had a prolonged audience with the emperor and it was believed in political quarters had apprised him of plans for a new type of cabinet, probably more compact than is customary.

The movement to dissolve all existing political parties and merge them into a single national unit gained momentum with announcement that the 31-year-old Seiyukai, one of Japan's major parties, had disbanded and pledged its membership to join the new organization under Prince Konoye's leadership.

The 48-year-old prince later joined the war and navy ministers in discussing formation of his new government.

The post of foreign minister was considered the most important in view of the army pressure which yesterday forced resignation of Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai.

Among those mentioned for foreign minister was Toshio Shiratori, long an advocate of outright military alliance among Japan, Germany and Italy who was recalled from his ambassadorship to Rome last September.

Cladakis Reports On Value of June Milk for Ulster

Ulster county plants approved for the New York milk marketing area received from producers during the month of June a total of 2,329,802 pounds of milk which at the uniform producer price announced for the month had a total value of $36,344.91, according to a report made by N. J. Cladakis, administrator of the federal-state orders regulating the handling of milk in the New York metropolitan market.

Dairy farmers are to be paid by handlers under the federal-state orders on the basis of the uniform price of $1.56 per hundredweight calculated by the market administrator for 3.5 per cent butterfat content milk delivered in June at plants in the 201-210 mile zone from New York city. This uniform price is subject to adjustments for butterfat content of milk delivered, and for freight for other zones.

At any individual plant in a zone, the producer price may vary depending upon the amount of Class I milk sold outside of the New York marketing area. Such outside milk is not priced under the orders, but is subject to whatever bargaining arrangements producers have with their handlers. In the case of cooperatives, the price is subject to the agreement which the association has with its members.

Under the federal-state orders handlers are required to pay producers for June delivered milk on or before July 25.

Mr. Cladakis reported that a total of 647,549.846 pounds of milk was involved in the uniform producer price computation for the month of June. Approximately 33 per cent of this milk delivered by producers was used by handlers for Class I, or fluid milk purposes in the marketing area, and slightly over 12 per cent was used for Class II-A, or fluid cream, purposes. The remainder of the total was used for making various dairy products. June deliveries to plants under the federal-state orders were made by approximately 61,000 producers in the six states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, Massachusetts, and Connecticut.
